Buds & Duds: Cannabis stocks drop sharply; WeedMD shares rise on facility conversion into extraction and processing

Cannabis stocks had a tough slog on Wednesday, with shares broadly down across US and Canadian markets.

The North American Marijuana Index, which tracks the top cannabis stocks in the US and Canada, was down 2.2% to 268 points on Wednesday. The Horizons Marijuana Life Sciences Index ETF sank 2.5% to C$19.60.

Buds

Despite the broad drops, a number of stocks lit up on Wednesday.

WeedMD Inc (CVE:WMD) (OTCMKTS:WDDMF) shares were on the rise after the company announced it is converting its 26,000-square-foot Aylmer, Ontario facility into a cannabis extraction and processing plant.

Shares were up 2.2% at C$1.82 in Canadian trading.

The fully licensed oil extraction facility is expected to be operational this summer with the capacity to process 200,000 kilograms of biomass per year. The company has processed oils at the Aylmer site since June 2017.

"WeedMD is optimizing its two licensed facilities to allow each to focus on a core vertical and to streamline our operations. We are transitioning the Aylmer site to produce a wide range of extracts and concentrates," CEO Keith Merker said. "All cultivation has been consolidated to our greenhouse and outdoor Strathroy facility, which is delivering consistently improving yields at increasingly competitive costs."
