Golden Saint Resources chairman predicts breakeven will happen 'within a year'

Cyril D'Silva, the executive chairman of Golden Saint Resources (LON:GSR), says the company is likely to reach breakeven 'within a year' if it keeps finding diamonds at the current rate.

Today, the Sierra Leone-based company revealed it found a 9.65 carat clear white diamond at its Tongo site to add to its growing collection. The news comes almost one month after the company said it found a 9.475 carat diamond at the same site, which it valued at between US$75,000 and US$100,000.

D'Silva discusses the potential of bringing in another wash plant, as well as the tight security around the project.
