Full interview: GrapheneCA's graphene used to construct first major commercial building made from the wonder material in Mexico

GrapheneCA Head of Business Development David Robles tells Proactive the privately-held company's graphene has been used in its first major construction project in Merida, Mexico as the sole material.

Robles says the New York-based company's Mobile Graphene Container System was used to build the Centro de Convenciones Siglo XXI in Merida, its first foray into large-scale construction using the anti-corrosive and anti-flammable material.
