Great Bear Resources appoints Michael Kenyon as its non-executive chairman; signs up presentation partner

Great Bear Resources Ltd. (CVE:GBR) (OTCQX:GTBAF) has announced the appointment of Michael Kenyon as its non-executive chairman and the addition of Paula Rogers to its board of directors.

The company also announced that it has partnered with VRIFY Technology Inc. to develop an interactive presentation, including a virtual geology overview and 3D model of its Dixie Project in Red Lake, Ontario. The group said it will continue to periodically update its interactive content alongside drill results and other catalysts as the Dixie Project continues to be advanced.

In a statement, Chris Taylor, president and CEO of Great Bear said, "Michael and Paula have collectively overseen the development and financing of several major mining projects with a collective value of more than $10 billion, and their experience adds significantly to the depth of our Board. I am very pleased to welcome them into their new roles with Great Bear.

"Also of note, our technical team under Bob Singh has worked with the team at VRIFY to provide a simplified, interactive model showing all of our Dixie Project drill results from the 2017 - 2020 exploration seasons, which totals over 400 drill holes. We've provided our current in-progress geological and mineralization models on our web site and on the Great Bear page at VRIFY, and plan to update this information periodically on a go-forward basis."
